SECTION 3 – FRIENDS/PEERS NETWORK EFFECTS AND REFERENCE GROUPS

In this section we would like to know more about those with whom you are related to, both within your family and outside it. We are mainly interested in those people with whom you interact daily. These people can have different degrees of intimacy/interaction with you, from family (parents, siblings, uncles, grandparents, cousins, etc.), to friends (neighbor, schoolmate, workmate, etc.), and people considered as acquaintances (neighbor, schoolmate, workmate etc.). To start with, could you give some information about your friends/peers from your school class as well as from your school in general?

To better understand your friend/peer network, I would like to ask you about those people who interact with you both in your school class and in your school in general. At school, both during lectures and breaks, you interact, that is, you talk, exchange ideas, discuss, give advice, listen to advice, perform school activities with students from your school class and from other school classes. Thinking about those students from your school class only, please, could you list up to 05 (FIVE) of your best friends?

(BEWARE INTERVIEWER: SHOW CARD № 2 WITH THE NAMES OF STUDENTS BELONGING TO THE RESPONDENT SCHOOL CLASS.)

Q. 27. Now think for a moment OF up to five friends and, for each of them, describe how these interactions occur during school time (both in lectures and during the break)?

Now we would like to understand your interactions outside school. We are interested in knowing friends or peers with whom you interact in extracurricular occasions like parties, outings, studies at home, movies, beaches, clubs, meetings and or other places. Note that some friends or peers from school or outside school as well as relatives (cousins, uncles, nephews and others) can naturally appear in your list. So, thinking about those people you consider friend or peer, you could list up to five (05) as your best friends.

Q. 28. Now think for a moment and answer, for each of the friends, how these relationships happen outside school.

To better understand your preferences, I would like to ask you about the ideal characteristics of an undergraduate degree (Technology College or University), even if you do not want to attend a University. You should keep in mind that when choosing an undergraduate degree, many aspects of the program itself are important, but also the university structure and location. We call "set of attributes" all these features that are important (at a lesser or greater degree) to determine your choice of undergraduate degree. You should use the following scale:

Almost irrelevant Unimportant Important Very important Extremely important
1 2 3 4 5

SECTION 6: PREFERENCES AND EXPECTATIONS ON UNDERGRADUATE COURSE AND LABOUR MARKET

Now I would like to ask you about various aspects of your preferences regarding your future career after high school as well as your expectations over future earnings on labour market in the career you intend to follow, using probability evaluations described in the last section. You may answer even if you do not want to go to university.
